Rays Named “Best in KLAS” for Teleradiology Services Radiology/Teleradiology Leader Named as a Top Performer by Independent Healthcare IT Research Firm

LITTLETON, Colo. (February 1, 2014) – Rays is a 2013 “Best in KLAS” winner for teleradiology services. The award is given annually by KLAS, an independent research firm dedicated to improving healthcare technology delivery by honestly, accurately and impartially measuring vendor performance. “Best in KLAS” awards are based on feedback by providers. Rays is a leading provider of on-site and off-site radiology and teleradiology services to hospitals and radiology practices nationwide.

“We listened to the providers, and these are the results,” said Adam Gale, CEO and president of KLAS Research. “This report isn’t about KLAS. It is a reflection of thousands of providers who wanted to be heard and counted. That is the reason top-performing vendors should be proud of their achievements.”

“This is a tremendous honor for us at Rays,” said Greg Rose, M.D., Ph.D. and CEO of Rays. “We pride ourselves on devoting ourselves both to the radiology groups we support and the patients we serve. We are committed to ensuring the highest quality radiology studies and reads while providing the best patient care. It is gratifying to know that we are achieving our mission and providing quality radiology support to our hospital partners. We are truly grateful for KLAS Research for this recognition.”

Through proprietary technology and expertise, Rays supports physicians and hospitals by delivering accurate radiology reads in a timely manner. Rays provides services on-site, off-site, or through a combination of services depending on each organization’s needs. More information on Rays technologies and services is available online at www.rays.net.

KLAS Research provides independent studies of healthcare technology companies to provide unbiased information on organizations across the United States. The full “Best in KLAS” report, along with more information about healthcare technology vendors, are available at www.KLASResearch.com.
